Session submissions extended to 11/14!

You know that feeling when you find a $20 bill in last year's winter coat, or class gets canceled the day your midterm paper is due? It's kind of like that.

We are very happy to announce that the deadline for submitting session proposals has been extended to Monday, November 14th! That means you've got two whole weeks to dream up your best Drupal ideas and get them out there for all the world to see.

Stand up and be heard!

Now through November 1st, we are accepting proposals for your DrupalCamp sessions. Camp sessions can address any skill level, and fit any of our five tracks:

- Development sessions might talk about topics including module development, security, tools and environments, best practices, etc.
- Site building sessions address topics around the Drupal admin, community-contributed modules and tools, and more. If it's not Development, and it's not Presentation, and it's part of the site creation process, it's probably here.

It's Official! DCNYC10 to be at...

John Jay College in Manhattan! (cue confetti)

We are thrilled to tell you that we have locked in our space reservations for DrupalCampNYC 10. John Jay is providing us with ample classroom space, use of their state-of-the-art theater, the college's cafeteria, and logistical support throughout the day!

It's been a pleasure working with their team, and we couldn't be more excited to be on their campus for this event.

PROGRAM

The DrupalCampNYC 10 program is designed to be a learning opportunity for Drupalistas in many roles and at all experience levels.

Content will be structured around five tracks:

- Site Building
- Development
- Presentation
- Business & end users
- Sysadmin & performance

Along with general sessions, each time slot will feature a Community Spotlight session led by a Featured Speaker for one track. Featured Speakers are recognized leaders in their area and will deliver expert insights into the topic of their choosing.

Additionally, the day will feature:

- New! New! to Drupal sessions in the morning.
- A Hacker Room
- Birds of a Feather sessions, including guided BoFs by Featured Speakers to close the day
- A bagels and coffee breakfast
- Catered lunch

Watch this space for updates as more details become available!
